Supreme Court Will Not Receive Their Bill Attacking Constitution-ality of Amendment—Has No Jurisdiction.

Washington, Jan. 12.—Supreme Court Justice White announced today that the bill of the New Jersey Retail Liquor Dealers' Association, attacking the constitutionality of the prohibition amendment and the Volstead act and seeking to prevent enforcement of the law by New Jersey authorities, would not be reviewed by the supreme court. The supreme court has no jurisdiction, said the chief justice, and any citizen of the United States may not bring suit against the statute.

Warm Rooms and a Cool Basement

With black diamonds at present prices, you want all the heat energy from your coal to concentrate on the job of sending warmth into living quarters. Boynton Square Pot boilers are built for free steaming with little fire. Only in intense cold will the rated capacity be needed. It's there when wanted.

The fire comes in direct contact with interior water surfaces. The unique shape of the fire-pot drops the ash from the sides freely and this contact point is as hot as the center of your fire. The perfect draft, extra large fire surface and upward trend of water surfaces keep the steam pressure high enough to heat all radiators steadily.

Boynton Square Pot boilers are noticeably economical of fuel. Ask your dealer—or write us.

EX-KAISER MAY GO TO SANITARIUM

In Holland If Found Criminally Insane By Allies—May Not Appear In Person at Trial—Plans Going Forward.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Jan. 12.—Holland will be formally requested by the allies to confine the ex-kaiser in an institution, possibly a private sanatorium, if he is found criminally insane by the international tribunal which the allied powers plan to set up to try him, according to opinion in well-informed circles today.

Despite the passive attitude of the United States, France and England, there is every indication that the British government is going ahead at top speed with the plans for the trial of William is secured from Holland.

High interest is manifested in the possibility that, if the former emperor does not answer the summons to appear, for some reason or other, the trial will be held in his absence. If he is found guilty upon the evidence of witnesses, including private correspondence, the sentence will be pronounced for the world as a warning against war lords of the future.

The suggestion that William may be found criminally insane indicates that an international commission may pass upon his mentality even if no formal lunacy claim is made by counsel or friends acting in behalf of the former German ruler.

WOMEN AND CIGARETTES.

The woman cigarette smoker has been judicially defended. According to Supreme Court Justice Mullen of New York, "It is not immoral for women to smoke cigarettes." This opinion was handed down in a separation suit in which counsel for the husband submitted that "bad character" was proved by the discovery of cigarettes in the wife's dresser drawer. "It would not make any difference if she had a thousand packages of cigarettes there," declared Justice Mullen. "This is not Hickville out in the center of the farm country. Some of the best women in the country and in the world smoke cigarettes."

The Justice is clearly right in principle and the counsel for the husband has been guilty of very weak argument. Nowadays a package of cigarettes in a woman's drawer is no more indication of "bad character" than a box of candy would be. This would be admitted by the unprejudiced even in a remote rural "Hickville." It is not a question of whether abuse of cigarettes or of tobacco in any form is physically injurious, but of whether a woman should be suspected merely for doing what the most respected of men do every day. Because of the lingering effect of old impressions the conservative among us may be loath to see our women smoking cigarettes, and we may imagine that the practice tends to make them less refined; but no longer has anybody an excuse for associating smoking with only women of ill repute. Whether we like it or not, it is true, as Justice Mullen says, that in these times some of the best women in America and the world smoke cigarettes.

OUR BOLSHIEVIST ENEMY.

According to the most trustworthy accounts there is much less liberty in Russia under the Bolshievists than there was under the czars. Nominally opposed to government, the Bolshievists rule with a rod of iron stronger and more unyielding than was ever known before. Their government is not only more destructive of individual freedom than was that of the Romanoffs but more cruel and deadly, the firing squad, for example, taking the place of former deportation to Siberia. In the summer of 1918, after only a few months of power, the Bolshievist authorities admitted some 13,000 ordered executions, these of course not including the vast number of assassinations or the immense mortality due to Bolshievist stagnation of industry. Recently the Bolshievist government made announcement of 14,000 "legal" executions in the first quarter of 1919.

Yet this travesty of government confesses its desire to carry its blessings into every foreign country and even has the impudence to hatch plans of world domination. Secretary Lansing has submitted to the chairman of the Senate committee on foreign relations a document upon conditions in Russia showing not only shocking misgovernment and wanton official cruelty in Russia itself but admitted and even trumpeted plans of "international revolution" and the "overthrow" of these including even "those countries in which democratic institutions are already established." Triumphant Bolshievism in Russia is shown to be merely the first step toward a great "international republic of Soviet." Proof of this is submitted in quotations from newspapers as well as in extracts from Bolshievist official utterances. This document handed to the Senate committee by our State Department shows that the expanding Bolshievist power is the active enemy not only of European governments but of our American government.

GOVERNMENT ELK HERDS.

Some of the season's best sports with a gun was found in southern Montana, where about 5,000 elk have been killed and thousands of others wounded, but it was sport of more than a questionable character. There were no game laws in effect. The elk were from government herds, and were shot on the Yellowstone Park reservation. Every year the elk go north or south to escape the winter snow drifts of the Yellowstone and then stray over the border.

Wyoming has protected the wandering elk by establishing game preserves on the south, but Montana has declined to do this on the north, permitting, moreover, an open season from October 15 to Christmas and allowing a single hunter to bag two elk. In this way most of the animals found straying across the boundary are soon shot down or later die in the woods from wounds. This severe winter the elk have been brought to death by hunger as well as by the hunter and there is fear of their extinction.

The feeding farm in the Yellowstone reservation formerly took care of 4,000 elk. This winter the hard-pressed animals have crowded to the feed trough in such numbers that the stores of hay were soon exhausted. The park superintendent has spent $20,000 on an extra supply of hay, yet more is needed and, as public funds are short, private contributions are solicited. A thousand tons of hay are needed to feed the ten thousand elk that must now be cared for. In summer the elk subsist largely on tender leaves and shrubs, while in winter they crowd up to receive the government's hay. This interesting creature is one of the largest of the deer family, being about six feet in height at full growth and sometimes weighing 1,200 pounds. That the straying herds should be protected from both pothunter and sportsman goes without saying.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

Why They Parted.

"Are you ready to live on my income?" he asked softly.
She looked up into his face trustfully.
"Certainly, dearest," she answered.
"If what?"
"If you get another one for yourself."—Exchange.

Just His Size.
A bright little boy entered a business office and, approaching a glum-looking man at one of the desks, began with an ingratiating smile:
"I'm selling thimbles to raise enough money to—"
"Out with you!" interrupted the man.
"Wouldn't you like to look at some nice thimbles?"
"I should say nit."

Tension Relieved.
The great fault in the art of a certain actress was her habit of coming to the footlights and addressing her lines to the audience instead of the other performers.

One evening a young man who had been feasting with some boon companions not wisely but too well, came in during one of her big scenes.
He was about to seat himself in the front row when the actress came forward and, with marked emphasis, said to the audience, instead of to the villain, who was trying to make love to her:
"I can never love you."

The youth lurched to his feet, remarked in an audible tone: "Well, that's settled," and marched to the exit.

This brings Ulster county up in the list of the counties of the state. With sales of Treasury Certificates by the banks (not included above) the total will exceed $10,000. The redemption will be to less than $3,500 so the result will be most satisfactory and will reflect credit upon the citizens of Ulster.

We thank you one and all.

EQUAL TO THE EMERGENCY

American Genius Quickly Produced Precision Blocks Accurate to Millionth Part of Inch.

One of America's little-known war romances is revealed by John H. Van Deventer in his story of precision gauges, which appears in Everybody's. Virtually all of our munitions had to be made to limit gauges which had to be corrected by means of precision blocks to within a few millionths of an inch. "Twenty years ago," writes Mr. Van Deventer, "a Swedish tool-maker named Johansson made up his mind that the millionth of an inch was the coming thing—hunted during nine years for a practical way to get it and got it. How? Nobody knows except Johansson, and he won't tell. For over nine years he kept everybody guessing. Our best shops imported his blocks and used them for checking the gauges."

"Then came the war, with its wonderful stimulation of American genius. With it came also the need of being independent of the old world in the matter of gauges. "The war took E. C. Peck away from his job of running a great factory in Cleveland and brought him to Washington to take charge of the gauging of ordnance products. It brought William E. Hoke of St. Louis to the bureau of standards, with an idea of how to produce precision blocks. Colonel Peck and Major Hoke got together, and in six months were turning out precision blocks accurate to the millionth part of an inch."

IS LARGEST OF INDUSTRIES

Statisticians Figure in Billions When They Make Computations of Live Stock Business.

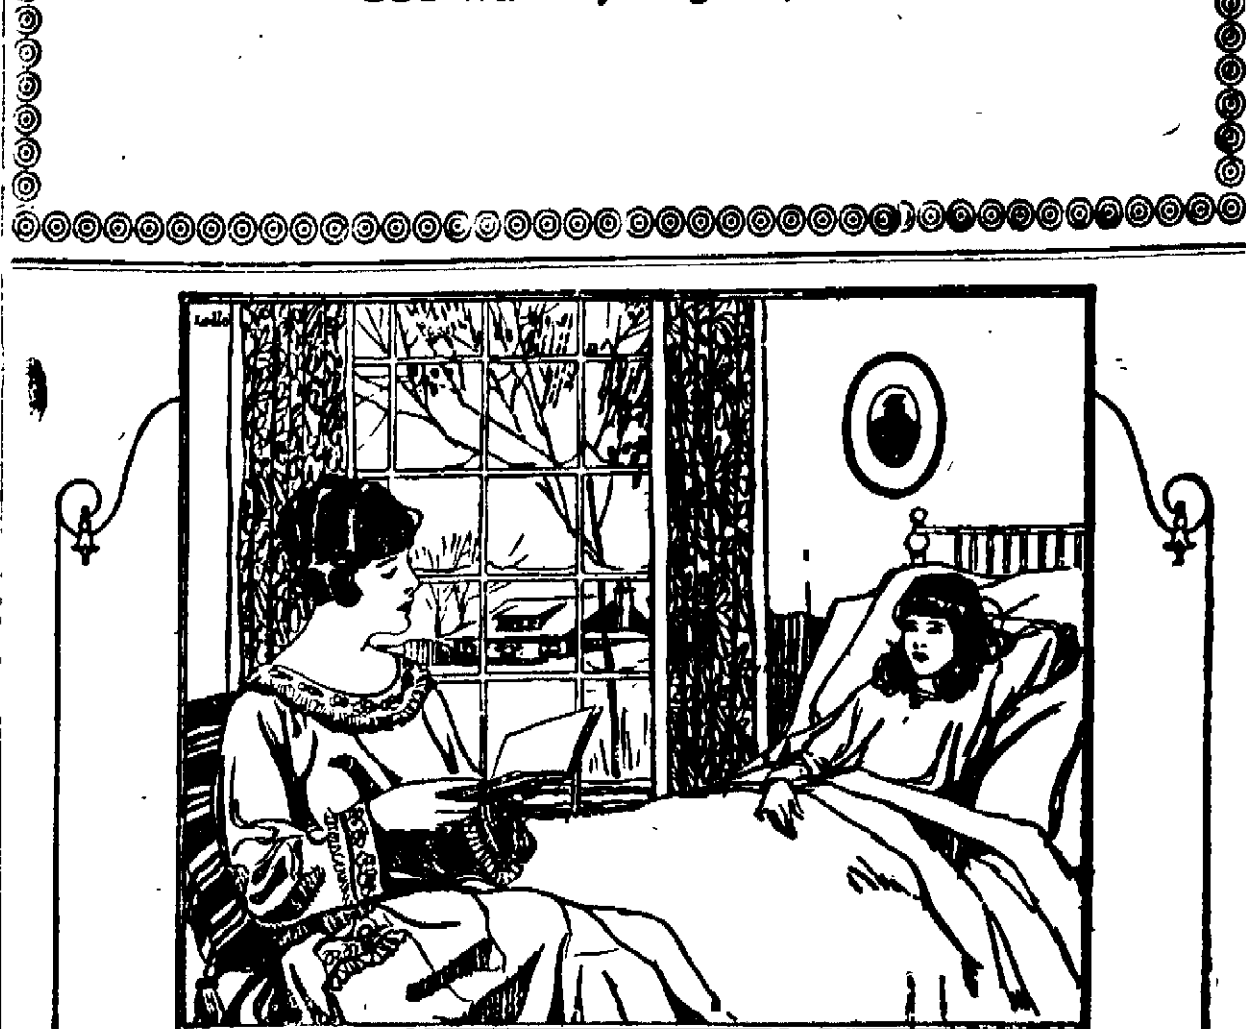

The live stock industry is the largest and, in more than one sense, the most important industry in the United States. Its extent, measured by the value of live animals, amounts to more than $3,000,000,000. Its importance rests in the necessity for live stock to consume the products of farms and ranges, 50 per cent of which, according to census reports, is fed to live stock; in the maintenance of soil fertility, which cannot be kept up continuously and economically without a considerable number of animals as a part of the farm system; in the indispensable place which animal food occupies in the American diet, of which it makes up 25 per cent, based on the average consumer's food-expenditure account; and finally, in the far-reaching influence which the growing, fattening and marketing of live stock has upon the social and economic welfare of all classes of people, including producers, distributors and the meat-consuming public.

The slaughtering and meat packing business is the largest manufacturing industry in the United States, according to the United States census of manufacturers. The value of live stock in the Chicago market alone totaled nearly $1,000,000,000 in 1918, or over $2,000,000 a day, and the daily sales at all of the centralized live stock markets of this country total close to $200,000,000.

Lemon Tree Produces Oranges.
According to the Journal of Heredity is a lemon tree, supposedly of the ordinary Italian lemon variety, was transplanted to Egypt. When it bore fruit it was noticed that the lemons were more spherical than lemon usually are and have an orange-colored stripe. The branch bore a large fruit which was unmistakably an orange.

THE SPOKEN WORD.

High School Student's Essay Praised By Magazine Editor.

Not only have pupils of Kingston High School come to the front in athletics and made a name for themselves, but they have developed in literature. This fact was brought out in a most encouraging manner when the great drive was launched for "Better Speech."

E. Tryon Miller was authorized by his English teacher to write a composition for class work which would deal with some subject appropriate for the occasion. Noticing the unusual features of the article, the teacher sent it to the Century Publishing Company. And to show that good class work pays, let it be known that Mr. Miller received the following letter a short time ago:

My dear Mr. Miller:—Miss Lovett has recently shown to Mrs. Marshall, our assistant editor, the copy of your admirable little essay, "The Spoken Word." And I am writing to say that we shall be very glad to print it in some early number of our St. Nicholas Magazine, and that a check for $10 shall soon go to you in payment for the manuscript.

It is a remarkable composition, and we shall be truly glad to give it to our readers.

Yours very truly,
W. F. CLARKE,
Editor St. Nicholas.

Harry Place the well known trombonist of the Hudson Valley, William White, cornetist, and Charles Wood, all formerly with the 31st Pioneer Infantry Band, will also participate in the orchestra of 15 musicians with Fred Shurtz and Harry Waters, soloists at the piano. The concert will be held at the Armory, January 10th.

Help Wanted!

Every young woman or young man who is not educated for a particular work should have a trade. The cigarmaking trade offers steady employment and big wages. Our experienced operators earn from $18.00 to $25.00 a week.

We will pay $8.00 per week to learners over 16 years of age. Working conditions in our factory are clean, healthy and under the supervision of a matron. Let us teach you a good trade.

PAINLESS EXTRACTING OF TEETH

Extracting teeth is painless in any modern dental office. The Cady Dental Office uses Nitrous-Oxide Gas for general anesthesia. While the patient desires to remain conscious but have the operation painless, Nitro-Novocaine-Supravaine Tablets are used in a million sections. This local anesthetic is painless and there is no recovery of the gums after the teeth are extracted. The Cady Dental Office has been established 35 years.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS NOTES

There has not been a great deal of activity at the high school during the past week owing to the fact that there are but five more days of school before the much dreaded bi-annual regatta examinations are to be held in the school. Of course, all the pupils are making a final sprint toward the goal which they must pass so only the most important things were brought up.

The Thursday morning assembly was under the charge of Miss Helen McNelis, vice president of the athletic association. After giving a brief account of the good work done by the football team and thanking them for the loyalty that they displayed in upholding the school's honor on the gridiron, Miss McNelis presented the cherished "K's" to the members of the team that earned them by their playing. The first team men, who received six inch "K's" were: Captain Meeker, Bishop, next year's captain; Gross, Weyant, Yerry, Adams, Messinger, Winters, McAndrew, M. Davenport, Barnhardt, Sears, Goldberg and Manager Kearney.

The men who received the second team letter, a four inch "K," were: Purcell, J. Goldberg, Teller, Davenport and Quinn.

E. Tryon Miller, president of the Webster-Hayne Debating Club, and John Krom are in New Brunswick, N. J., attending a conference dealing with the formation of a debating league in New York state.

Friday afternoon the first game in the inter-classic league was played in the gymnasium between the Juniors and the Seniors. As the latter won the championship last year they still have a good eye for the basket, so the Juniors went down to defeat with the score of 13-9.

Friday evening the Middlets journeyed to Saugerties, where they met defeat at the hands of the high school team of that place, 34 to 18. Foster featured for the locals as far as scoring was concerned, while MacNaughton and Baker were the high point-getters for the villagers. Albrecht and Winters also featured.

TRIANGLES EASILY BEAT CATSKILL

Saturday evening at the Y. M. C. A. the Triangles defeated the Catskill Y. M. C. A. team with the score of 39-26.

The Catskill team was played off its feet and the Triangles' wonderful passwork bewildered them.

McCarthy starred for Catskill, while there was no individual starring on the Triangle team, each man playing for the good of the team.

INEXPENSIVE DISHES.

Inexpensive is an adjective which one uses these days with a large latitude as nothing, even the pie-plant codfish, is inexpensive except by comparison.

Baked Codfish.—Take a package of codfish, soak over night, pour off water and parboil, then drain again and place in a shallow baking dish.

with just enough sweet milk to cover. Add bits of butter and pepper with salt if needed, bake one and a half to two hours. Remove the fish and thicken the milk with flour. Cook well then add the fish and serve.

Brown Sugar Ising.—Take a cupful of brown sugar and four tablespoonfuls of water, cook together until it makes a thread. Pour over the well-beaten white of one egg in which has been added one-fourth teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Beat until cool; flavor with vanilla.

Apples Gingerbread.—Warm together half a cupful of brown sugar and one cupful of apple jelly with a third of a cupful of shortening. Remove from the fire and add three-quarters of a cupful of sour milk, two and one-half cupfuls of flour sifted with one teaspoonful of clover, the same of cream, one teaspoonful of soda and half a teaspoonful of salt. Mix and beat, pour into a buttered tin and bake forty minutes.

Baked Apple Cakes.—Cook two cupfuls of dried apple with water, then strain and cook them in two cupfuls of butter (with spices to taste). For twenty minutes. Cream one-half cupful of shortening with one cupful of sugar, add two beaten eggs, three cupfuls of flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and a half teaspoonful of soda and the same of salt.

Strawberry Shortcake.—Cook two cupfuls of dried apple with water, then strain and cook them in two cupfuls of butter (with spices to taste). For twenty minutes. Cream one-half cupful of shortening with one cupful of sugar, add two beaten eggs, three cupfuls of flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and a half teaspoonful of soda and the same of salt.

The Stamp of Approval

By EUNICE LEE

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union)

A busy man was Walter Doane, but not so busy that he did not pay attention to extraneous things about the office, particularly Miss Olive Raymond. She had flashed in upon the humdrum life of Doane with bewitching and inspiring influence, a sweet, modest smile of a girl worth paying attention to, he at once decided, for she fitted into the working harness without making a mistake.

Her mission was to file away correspondence and make a record of all orders received by mail. In a way she was under the direction of Doane, who had charge of the entire mail of the office. He was a man of system and precision and had reduced the opening of letters and notation and distribution of the same to a positive science. Doane had the greatest assortment of rubber stamps on his desk ever possessed by one man: "Delivered," "Held," "Accepted," "Department A-B-C" and so on down the line. When this epistolary marvel and expert had got through with his work he had fed the last letter direct to its point of final utilization.

As such, pleasant faced, helpful Olive Raymond had cast a spell over him. They got on famously together, they worked in harmony, the days seemed shorter and less irksome and mutual companionship. Then came a cloud. The assistant manager of the office, Dexter Bull, a loudly dressed, autocratic and fully disagreeable fellow of twenty-eight, began to annoy Olive. He interrupted his attention upon her to his snare, smiling like whenever it was possible. With a jealous pang Doane noted him wait on the street after the day's work was over and in the hands his company upon Olive, until in sheer self protection she managed to join a coterie of girls and evade his special companionship. She came to Doane one morning, nervous and worried.

"Mr. Doane," she said, "I am sure you are my good, true friend and I wish to confide to you my troubles. Mr. Bull was waiting at a side street for me when I left home this morning, and walked with me uninvited clear to the office. This is the third time he has done this and if it continues I shall be compelled to seek a position elsewhere."

"Oh, you mustn't think of that," declared Doane. "Why, I see you all miss you, I see you don't like Bull, and I probably less than yourself. He presumes on his position here. I don't want to offend or quarrel with him, but I think I see a way to gently give him a hint that he is an unwelcome intruder. If you are willing to substitute the company of a staid old fellow like myself, I will be proud to be your escort."

Olive's face brightened. "I cannot afford, nor anybody else, with the staid and old element," she said with a pretty smile, "but to put you to the trouble."

"Trouble?" repeated Doane and the emphasis of the expression caused Olive to blush, and that evening Bull, waiting at the corner, sneaked off with a dark scowl on his youthful face, and the next morning as Doane passed Olive's home she promptly joined him, and the blunder Bull, lurking in the distance, made himself scarce.

Where he disappeared in the office, however, he made all kinds of excuses to visit Olive's desk. He several times invited her to a dinner, he presented her with occasional notes to which she paid no attention. All the same she was flustered and distressed in part over "the trouble" she was giving Doane.

One day as he was nearing the office he lingered so as not to join Bull, who was directly ahead of him, and when companionship he evaded whenever possible. As Bull turned into the building a shabbily dressed, keen faced fellow glided to Doane's side.

"Mister," he said slyly, "I've been nothing you and that fellow ahead of you to know that you don't like him. Neither do I, and I happen to know something about him that would take him down a peg or two if it was sitting on him. See that one? Well, it's the address of his deserted wife, who is looking for him, and if you can use it and spare me a dollar, why I reckon you've got value received."

It was that same evening that Doane made it his business to get Bull aside. "Mr. Bull," he said, extending the card, "I furnished a friendly tip might be of use to you," and he handed him the card, and Bull flushed and then grew white to the lips, and the next day disappeared, just in time to evade the visit of a vicious looking, determined faced woman who came in quest of him.

Extra work kept Olive and Doane overtime a few evenings after that, and as both got ready to depart Doane said quietly: "Miss Raymond, will you give me time to say something deserving of hours, but which can be epitomized in seven words: 'I love you—will you marry me?'"

Pretty blushing Olive Raymond cast down her eyes. She fumbled the many rubber stamps on the desk before her. She seemed to especially select one. Faintly she righted it in her hand, gently she pressed its surface across a blank pad.

And it read: "Accepted."

"Varnish Not Full Protection."

Wood is not wholly protected from moisture by varnishing, which is shown by tests of the Forest Products Laboratory in Wisconsin to have only a retarding effect. The woods used were yellow birch, basswood, red gum, African mahogany, white ash, white pine, Sitka spruce, southern yellow pine, bald cypress, incense cedar, Port Orford cedar, and sugar pine; but there was no perceptible difference in the different species in the moisture absorbed through the coating. Three coats of high-grade spar varnish were applied to four panels of each species, two panels being brush-coated and two dipped with a special machine designed to give an even coat. The panels were dried 72 hours between coats and ten days after the final coat; and were then exposed 17 days to an atmosphere practically saturated with moisture. The brush-coated panels then showed ten grammes of moisture per square foot of surface; the dipped, between four and five grammes.

Still Believe in Fairies.

A case just heard in the Tipperary courts reveals the survival in Ireland of a belief in the fairies. It was a claim for compensation for cutting trees and bushes around a fort at Slumbilly. The claimant said he especially valued these bushes as "there was dancing and lights there every night."

It was alleged that the defendant had taken away the bushes to erect the fort.

The judge pointed out that if there were fairies they would visit their anger on the man who dared to cut the bushes and not on the owner. He did not accept the fairy theory and dismissed the claim.

Receiving Wireless.

By use of photography, a method invented by C. A. Horie, an electrical engineer of Schenectady, wireless messages can be received and recorded at a far greater speed and with more accuracy than heretofore. The invention permits the eye either to supplement or replace the ear in reading wireless messages. The machine has reached a rate of 400 words a minute, and in test as many as 900 words. Up to this time the most rapid method of recording radio signals has been by phonograph, but this must still be transcribed, so to speak, by the ear and not the eye, and moreover no permanent visual record is made.

Harmful Dust in Factories.

The dust in various industrial establishments is found by Professor Winslow of Yale Medical school, to range from about one-twentieth of a grain of solid particles per 100 cubic feet of air in a good metal polishing shop to 12 grains in a textile factory.

But while a carpet or blanket mill yields more dust than such industries as pottery, asbestos, tobacco and steel-grinding, little of it is inorganic matter, and it is the dust from abrasive materials that seems most harmful and to tend most to produce tuberculosis.

To Foul Auto Thieves.

To aid in the capture of automobile thieves, a Los Angeles man has invented a device to be locked about a tire which makes a loud noise each time it strikes a pavement and leaves an easily followed trail.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

By Mary Graham Doane

FOUR WOODPECKER COUSINS.

The early autumn had come and Mr. Harry Woodpecker was hard at work making a nest winter home for himself in a tree in the bog woods. Mrs. Woodpecker had found an old hole for herself, for she knew perfectly well that during the autumn and winter Mr. Harry Woodpecker didn't care much about her.

He wore a handsome suit of black and white and a very beautiful collar of red. Mrs. Harry Woodpecker's dress was more simple. She didn't wear red, and there was more brown in her feathers.

"Why, there's my cousin, Mr. Red-Headed Woodpecker, with his wife," said Mr. Harry Woodpecker.

"Hello, drum, drum; hello," said Mr. Red-Headed Woodpecker.

"Hello," said Mr. Harry Woodpecker, "what are you two doing, may I ask?"

They looked at each other and then at Mr. Harry Woodpecker and they smiled such beautiful woodpecker smiles as though to say that they would gladly tell what they were doing, and that Mr. Harry Woodpecker had the perfect right to ask.

The Red-Headed Woodpeckers were both handsomely dressed and they wore a good deal of red, which color they were very fond of, for their head, neck and throat were of red and dashing crimson.

"We're going to find an old tree," said Mr. Red-Headed Woodpecker, "and then we're going to take turns hollowing it out. When Mrs. Woodpecker works I'll have a nice meal of grubs and bugs and when she is through work then she'll have a meal and a rest."

"Well, I've got some nuts, too, for the hard, cold days are coming," said Mrs. Woodpecker.

"Ha, ha," laughed Mr. Red-Headed Woodpecker, "don't she the fine little wife now. Always thinking of the future? Always planning to save something so we won't ever starve?"

"It will be all right unless the squirrels find out where we live," she said.

Mrs. Harry Woodpecker looked at Mr. Harry Woodpecker sadly, for they weren't such friends during the autumn and winter months. When the birdies were young Mr. Harry was a devoted mate but at other times he only cared to look after himself.

"Well," he said, "it's nice for you two to be such friends, but somehow it's hard to change one's ways. Now children go in swimming in the summer time but never in the winter time. They don't change their habits just because they may hear that the polar bears go in the icy water at any time at all."

"So I can't change my ways because you are different," Mr. Red-Headed Woodpecker.

Mrs. Harry Woodpecker now smiled a regular woodpecker's smile but Mrs. Red-Headed Woodpecker drummed on a piece of bark and said to herself:

"That's a joke! As though Mr. Harry Woodpecker thought he could make an excuse like that and have it sound sensible. The very idea of children swimming through the ice because the polar bears do! A little far-fetched, a little far-fetched, I will say."

But just then along came Mr. Downy Woodpecker with his family on his way to join some of his winter friends, the nuthatches and chickadees.

"Hello, cousins," he called. He was much smaller than his cousins; he wore a black suit striped with white with white bands over and under his eyes. He, too, cared for red for he wore a patch of it on the upper side of his neck.

"I'm going to drum and tattoo and play in the band—or on the tree, and I'm going to get insects, I am. Ah, but cousins, none of you know how to drum as I do! For I can make live drumming. I can keep cheerful drumming. I can make my house and get my meals doing the same thing."

"There are few creatures like that. When children say they love their sisters and brothers they have to use words; when mothers are about the house they have to use words and groceries; and when grown-ups build their homes they have to get carpenters. And as for keeping cheerful, they have to dance or play or sing—and we can just drum, drum, drum, drum, drum."

"Heigh-ho, heigh-ho, drum, drum," said the Yellow-Bellied Woodpecker, known as the Sapsucker: "I'm looking forward to the spring days when the sap will come from the trees, but in the meantime I'll have a worm or two. But I won't stay in this cold climate all winter, I won't."

Did the Dog Know?

The Frenchman did not like the look of the barking dog barking his wail.

"It's all right," said the host, "don't you know the proverb, Barking dogs don't bite?"

"Ah, yes," said the Frenchman, "I know the proverb, you know the proverb, does he know the proverb?"

Would Make Good Officer.

Question—What boy in grade would make a good officer?

Answer—A classmate.

Twin Electric Fans.

Comparing that two small electric fans are more efficient than one large one, an inventor has invented a pair of opposite fans from a common pedestal, at different heights, and automatically adjusted as to angle.

DOG AS CHILD'S COMPANION

With the Right Kind of Animal, Youngster Will Seldom Stray Beyond Safe Bounds.

An observation of our friend, the farmer, that "I dunno's I ever heard of a child's getting really lost that had a dog to play with," merits consideration.

Sweeping generalizations are unsafe, but there is no question of the value of a dog as a child's playmate and protector. Some dogs have the runaway instinct themselves. The call of the wild stirs within them—they are vagabonds by nature. Such a dog would delight to have human company in a runaway journey and are not safe companions for children. But the right kind of dogs, and there are many of them, who have been brought up with children, are quick to assume the role of guardian. With such a dog no child would ever get lost; indeed, would not be allowed to stray beyond bounds.

We have in mind a Great Dane whose temper was such that, although we were acquaintances, we never ventured to enter his domain. If he were around, until he had time to satisfy himself that we could pass muster, three sniffs you were approved by the dog he called master and goddess he called mistress, he had an embarrassing way of standing on his hind legs and placing his front ones around your neck—a curve quite like, if you were not well bred, to knock you off your feet. He was the inseparable companion of the baby of the family—a boy of four or five—who had a predilection for running away. When the youngster started, the Great Dane followed; when the child reached the gate, the dog blocked his way, gently but firmly. For anyone to have touched that child when the Dane was near would have cost him his life, unless he had first shot and killed it.

The ideal genre of the dog is a source of constant amusement to those who know him best and love him most and of his least on those is, happily, no question. If all children had dogs as playmates there would be fewer to run away and get lost.—New Bedford Standard.

Keene's Theater will present today and Tuesday what is considered by experts to be one of the most perfect motion pictures yet made. The story is of a marriage of convenience, adapted from "Her Kingdom of Dreams" by Louise Provost, which was published in "The People's Home Journal." The film was directed by Marshall Neilan, who recently made Mary Pickford's "Daddy Long Legs." Critics state that it is almost impossible to pick a flaw in the wonderful acting, while the settings, photography and scenic effects—particularly those showing the loggia in the Pacific northwest—are magnificent.

RESOLUTIONS ON MEMBERS' DEATHS

Utter County Bar Ass'n Votes Its Loss at Passing of O'Reilly. Cooper and Coon—Eulogies by Attorneys And Jurists.

The bereavement and loss sustained by the Utter County Bar by reason of the death of Benjamin M. Coon of Saugerties, N. Frank O'Reilly of this city and Ashley W. Cooper of this city, members of the association, was most fittingly expressed in resolutions drafted by committees and presented Saturday evening at a meeting called for that purpose, held at the court room of the court house, and in short addresses made by members present.

D. G. Atkins, president of the association, presided, and others present were Supreme Court Justice G. D. B. Haskin, Judge James Jenkins, Judge William H. Grogan, Andrew J. Cook, Daniel B. Devo, John T. Loughran, John M. Cashin, Henry Klein, M. O. Auchmoody.

After President Atkins had read the call for the meeting, Secretary Klein read the following preamble and resolution presented by Judge Clearwater, Howard Chipp and Judge James A. Betts, the committee on the death of Benjamin M. Coon. They were adopted, ordered spread on the minutes, and presented to the next court to spread upon the minutes of said court.

In the death of Benjamin M. Coon, the Utter Bar loses its oldest member, one who was the connecting link between the past and present generation of lawyers. He came to the bar when Jacob Hardenburgh, Erasmus Cook, Henry Broadhead, Augustus Schoonmaker, Theodor R. Westbrook, William S. Kenyon, Seymour L. Stebbins and William Lawton were at the zenith of their fame, he lived to see those of us who were students when he was an active practitioner, well advanced, in life and professional experience.

He was a man of the highest personal character, of the most exemplary and industrious habits, a careful lawyer, an unassuming and modest gentleman who filled with ability and dignity minor judicial offices, and who had the respect and affection of his professional brethren, and of the community in which he lived.

Resolved, that this memorandum be presented by your committee at the next trial term of the supreme court held in this county, and that the court be requested to direct its entry in full upon the minutes, and that a copy, duly attested by the president and secretary of the association, be forwarded to the family of Mr. Coon.

A. T. CLEARWATER
HOWARD CHIPP
JAMES A. BETTS
Committee

Andrew J. Cook, of the committee on the death of N. Frank O'Reilly read the following resolutions. He then spoke telling of the excellence of Mr. O'Reilly as a lawyer, of his courtesy and of his ability. John M. Cashin, John T. Loughran and Judge Jenkins also made remarks in which they reviewed the merits of the late Mr. O'Reilly as a man and a lawyer, of his great ability and success being classified as a model lawyer. The resolutions were adopted.

Whereas, the Hon. N. Frank O'Reilly, for many years an esteemed and honored member of this association, has lately departed this life, and

Whereas, by his exceptional talents, extraordinary legal judgment, untiring zeal and genial personality, Judge O'Reilly has long been recognized as one of the ablest practitioners at the bar, and in his fidelity to the interests of his clients, Judge O'Reilly has always been most thorough in the preparation and presentation of the many important legal matters entrusted to his care, and

Whereas, Judge O'Reilly always has been solicitous of the welfare of other members of his profession, and on different occasions has appeared before this association on behalf of fellow members of the bar, and has always been willing to sacrifice his time and contribute generously, and even beyond his means, for the welfare of others, and particularly those who have been forced by condition of health or lapse of years to abandon the active practice of the law and who find themselves in these extraordinary times in need of the assistance of their fellow members, and

Whereas, Judge O'Reilly has always been particularly interested in the professional advancement of the young men of the bar, and has most generously counseled them in the most bewildering and perplexing legal matters that so frequently beset the youthful and inexperienced attorneys and not infrequently confounded and sometimes even the older counselors, and sometimes even the courts themselves, and

Whereas, because of the many noble characteristics that show Judge O'Reilly to be not only a loyal friend and genial companion, but a most brilliant lawyer, now therefore, be it Resolved, that in the death of Judge N. Frank O'Reilly the bar of Utter county has sustained the loss of one of its ablest members, most highly respected and esteemed as a lawyer, whose professional career deserves and receives the highest commendation of his professional associates and should serve as an inspiration and encouragement to the younger members of this association in the practice of their honored profession.

Respectfully submitted,
ANDREW J. COOK,
W. D. BRINTON, JR.,
JOHN M. CASHIN,
Members of Committee.

Justice G. D. B. Haskin presided in behalf of the committee on the death of Ashley W. Cooper the following preamble and resolution: which were adopted. Justice Haskin spoke of his intimate acquaintance with Mr. Cooper, during his life, when he was clerk with the late John William M. Kenyon, the able clerkship with the United States District Court, his ability as

ANNUAL REPORT OF ST. MARY'S

Made Public Sunday at Church Services—During Year Receipts
Amounted to $45,929.72—Dean Hickey's Silver Jubilee in June.

The annual report of St. Mary's Church for 1919 was made public Sunday at the masses when leaflets were distributed to the members of the congregation containing details of the receipts and expenditures during the past year.

The financial report showed that receipts for 1919 had amounted to $45,929.72. A synopsis of the financial report follows:

Receipts.
Bal. on hand Jan. 1, 1919 $4,774.68
Supplementary Receipts.. 645.07
Collections for year (in which various sources are given) 40,510.07
Total $45,929.72

Expenses.

Current $28,078.44
Sent to Chancery Office 1,336.63
Charity 974.92
Propagation of Faith 329.50
Bal. on hand Dec 31, 1919 14,708.17

Total $45,929.72
The report is signed by Dean Hickey as rector, and William Roach and William D. Cashin as trustees.

This is the twenty-fifth year of Dean Hickey's ministry, all of which has been spent in Ulster county, and most of it in St. Mary's parish. The cash balance shown in the financial report of $14,708.17 is to be used as a preliminary fund for the erection of the proposed new rectory.

Dean Hickey Sunday outlined a plan to establish a jubilee rectory fund. In June occurs the silver jubilee of his priesthood, and he is desirous at that time to have enough funds on hand to erect the new rectory. When the new rectory is built it is expected to give over the present rectory to the use of the Sisters of St. Mary's parish, who now occupy the home at the corner of Wurts and West Pierpont streets.

AT THE THEATRE.

Anita Stewart and Bessie Barriscale
Here Tonight.

Strung by the attempts of a designing woman to vilify her in the eyes of her husband, Judith Rutledge signs over a three-million dollar estate willed to her by the father of her husband in "Her Kingdom of Dreams," starring Anita Stewart and which will be seen at Keeney's tonight and tomorrow.

An Anita Stewart Miss Stewart depicts one of the most admirable of all characters portrayed during her screen career.

Also Mack Bennett's "Uncle Tom Without the Cabin" with Ben Turpin as Little Eva, George Harris and Uelie Tom, a burlesque on Mr. Bennett's version of this famous old play with Ben Turpin playing about everything but the cabin. It is a riot of fun, a chance to have the laugh of a lifetime. Wednesday Olive Thomas in her greatest characterization "Upstairs and Down."

The attraction at the Auditorium tonight is Bessie Barriscale in "All of a Sudden Norma," a monkey comedy. Fox News and educational scenes. Tomorrow "Oh, You Women" with Ernest Truex and Louis Huff.

Lenine Commands Ukraine.

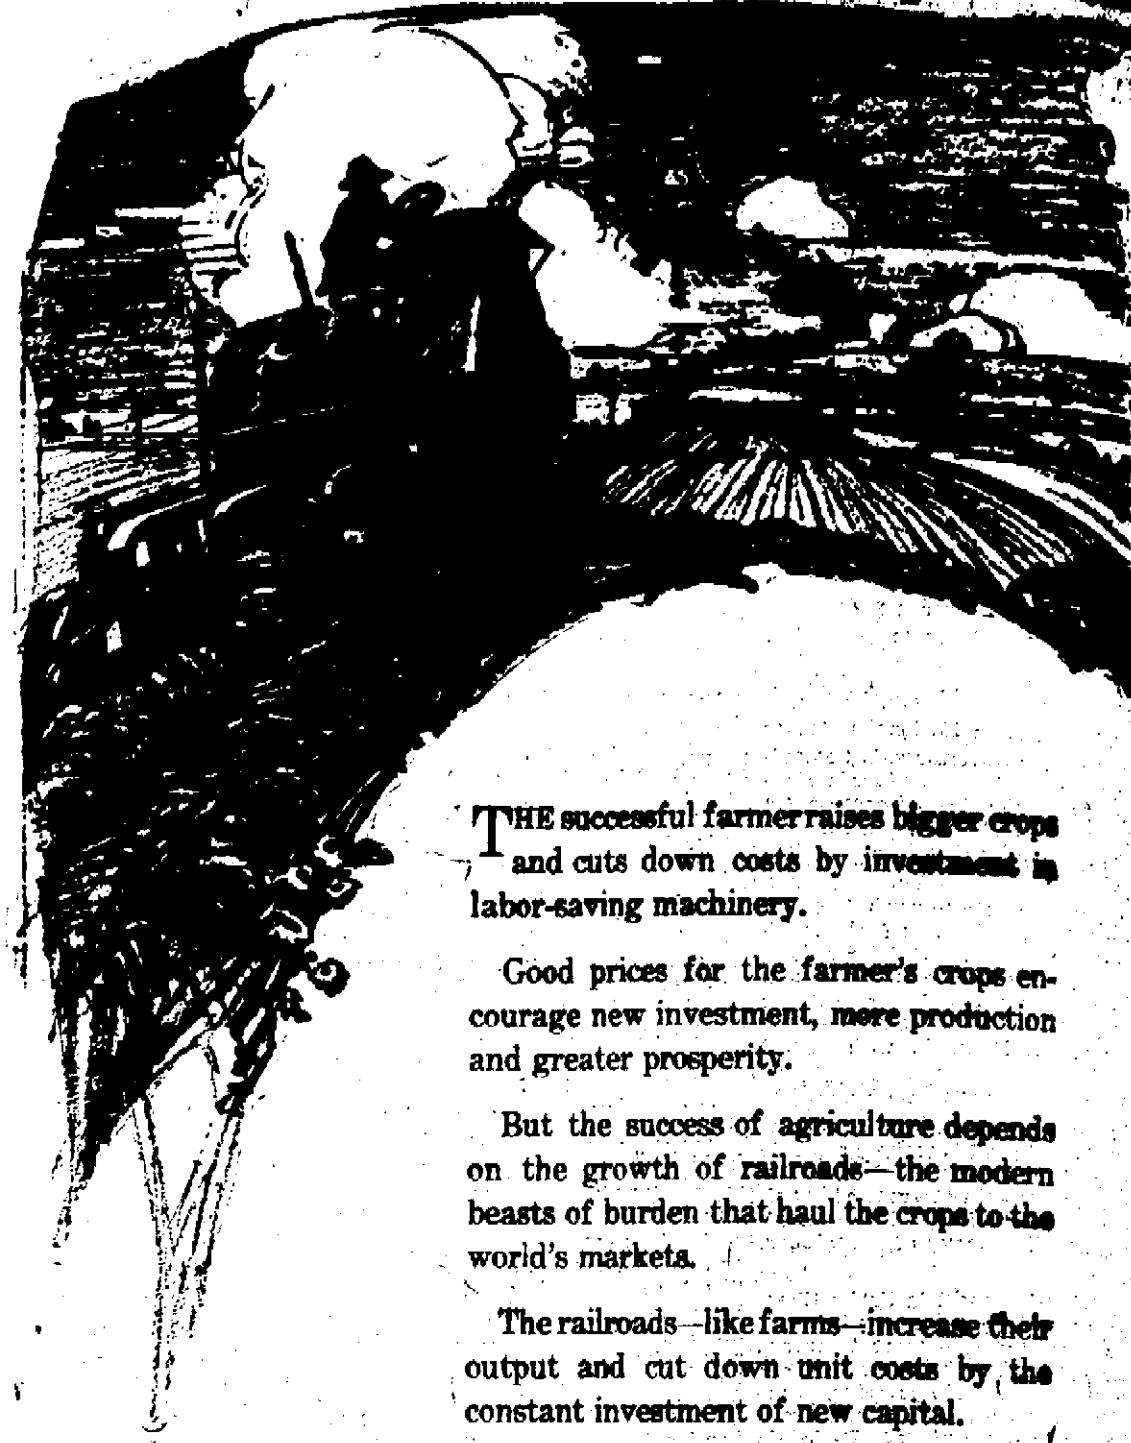

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Jan. 12.—Nicolai Lenine, the Bolshevik premier of Russia, has sent a manifesto to Kiev, demanding that the Ukrainians form a new Soviet government, either independent in itself or subsidiary to Moscow, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Vienna today.

Poles To Spurn Bolsheviks.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Jan. 12.—Poland is preparing to reject the Bolshevik peace offer and to concentrate her strength to meet the expected offensive of the soviet army in the spring, according to a Central News Agency dispatch from Copenhagen today, quoting advice received there from Cracow.

The Newspaper in North Africa.

"Extra" shouted in the streets of Algiers or any other North African town would not bring the people of the streets crowding around the newsboy, but would send them hurrying as much as it lies in an Arab to hurry, to the "office" of the public reader. He holds an important position, his duty being to pass on the news of the day to illiterate citizens.—The Christian Herald.

THE successful farmer raises bigger crops and cuts down costs by investment in labor-saving machinery.

Good prices for the farmer's crops encourage new investment, more production and greater prosperity.

But the success of agriculture depends on the growth of railroads—the modern beasts of burden that haul the crops to the world's markets.

The railroads—like farms—increase their output and cut down unit costs by the constant investment of new capital.

With fair prices for the work they do, the railroads are able to attract new capital for expanding their facilities.

Rates high enough to yield a fair return will insure railroad growth, and prevent costly traffic congestion which invariably results in poorer service at higher cost.

National wealth can increase only as our railroads grow.

Poor railroad service is dear at any price. No growing country can long pay the price of inadequate transportation facilities.

This advertisement is published by the Association of Railway Executives.

WATERS CASE IN POLICE COURT

County Judge Joseph M. Fowler

has denied the application made by Attorney Andrew J. Cook in behalf of his client, Frank A. Waters, to have the grand jury consider the charge of assault in the third degree, stating that it was not a grand jury offense and should be tried in police court. The trial has been set down for Tuesday evening in police court.

Chris J. Flanagan appears for the plaintiff. Mr. Waters is accused of knocking down and kicking an eight year old boy.

Queen of the Hudson.

On Mary, dear old Mary, you too have passed away.

To join the loving memory of a happy yesterday.

The faithful crew, who worked on you, are many gone before.

You were their pride, their life, their pal, in the dear old days of yore.

All spotted white, they named you right, you were the "Queen."

Like a diamond sparkling from above, you shone far down the stream.

Your decks with crowds were always bowed, your service far renewed.

Though time may come and time may go, your like can never be found.

Your whistle stilled, like a loving voice, its echoes heard no more.

Have phantom hands reached out for you, from that eternal shore?

Though you've passed away like yesterday, in thought we'll e'er be together.

A wealth made of tender memories,

we dedicate to you.

FLORENCE M. A. MAINES.

The late William B. Maines, father of the writer, served 25 years on the Mary Powell.

CADDUCK VS. STECHER.

Wrestling Championship To Be Decided For Big Prize.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 12.—Earl Cadduck and Joe Stecher, joint claimants of the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, have today been matched to meet in a finish bout.

The big wrestlers have agreed to a match for a purse of $40,000 on January 20, to a finish.

The purse is to be split $25,000 to the winner and $15,000 to the loser.

Cadduck and Stecher last met in 1917 in Omaha and after each man had secured a fall, Stecher failed to answer the call of the referee for the third fall and the match was awarded to Cadduck.

Lumber Dealers to Meet.

The twenty-sixth annual convention of the Retail Lumber Dealers' Association will be held in Syracuse,

January 20 to 22 inclusive. One of the problems to be discussed is how to hold down the high cost of building under conditions which indicate that the prices of lumber will never be lower than they are today. The whole mezzanine floor of the Onandaga hotel has been set aside for exhibits of the retail lumber and allied industries. After the convention the retailers will have a special train and join the Ohio association on a tour of the southern pine and cypress lumber regions. This tour will last about two weeks.

"PERFECT" MAN GETS ROAST

London Writer Refuses to Envy Women Who Are "Blessed" With Such a Life Companion.

Every one envied a certain lady because it was apparent that she had such a perfect husband.

True enough, the gentleman neither drank, swore, looked at other women, gambled, nor did he spend any time away from his wife except when at business.

Yet the woman who "possessed" this model of perfection found him a most irritating companion with whom she was forced to spend her life, says London Answers. For instance, if she got worn out trying to pacify baby, who was cross, and eventually lost her temper with the child, her husband would come in, take the little one in his arms and amiable try—and often succeed—in a fresh person sometimes does—to mark the child with calmness.

"That could be all very well if he didn't put on the 'See how much better my method is' air, which is most tantalizing."

Perfect men are so anxious to obtain their perfection upon their womenfolk that they often defeat their own ends. They spend money on seats for the opera or buying little presents with no knowledge of whether such will be the most acceptable or desirable gifts.

It is because these men are so good in intentions that their wives haven't the heart to say, "I'd rather have had 5 shillings for a new box iron. It would save me such a lot of trouble."

The husband who has a few glaring faults is pretty sure to look over his wife's faults and humor her whims. The perfect man has a horrible knack of pointing at his womanfolk.

The woman with a faultless husband often feels like doing something to make him wear at her. Perfection is apt to become dull and monotonous.

Don't envy the woman with a perfect husband who wishes you wish your own men wouldn't drop cigarettes ash on the carpet or storm a bit when things go wrong; for these careless "temperish" men have a lot of good qualities to balance their faults. The man who never raises his voice to complain rarely seems to wife with loving words of praise.

Shells Still Flying.

Residents of the desolate districts of France are still fleeing from bursts of shell and shrapnel.

The new menace is caused by the small grass and swamp fires which frequently set off the shells that have been put up to be hauled away and exploded in some safe place.

Maj. H. C. Greene of Boston had a thrilling ride and narrowly escaped a hail of shrapnel on his way from St. Quentin to Laon as a result of one of these fires. A French woman working in a field near Roncville was gassed and considerable damage has been done.

In the vast, desolate fields, thousands of unexploded shells have been picked up by German prisoners, and through there are details hauling them away and exploding them in remote valleys every day, there are still long ranks of them everywhere. Sparks from locomotives and from small fires where battlefield rubbish is being burned occasionally set fire to patches of dry weeds, and the accidental bursts are numerous.

Dreadful Mistake.

There was a distinct air of chafed resignation about him as he pondered the following note: "Dear Miss Brown: I return herewith your kind note in which you accept my offer of marriage. I would draw your attention to the fact that I beguile 'Dear George: I do not know who George is but my name, as you will remember, is Thomas.'—Houston Post.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

THE CROWS.

"Caw, caw, caw, caw," said the first crow.

"Caw, caw, caw, caw," said the second crow.

"Pray, tell me, what do you think of the haying season?" asked the first crow.

"Pray, tell me, what do you think of the haying season?" asked the second crow.

"I'll tell you if you tell me," said the first crow.

"And I'll tell you if you will tell me," said the second crow.

"All right," said the first crow, "let's shake on it, in other words let's agree," so they both said,

"Caw, caw," and flapped their wings.

"I think it is a fine haying season," said the first crow.

"So do I," said the second crow. "I think it has been a fine season, too," he added.

The two crows were sitting on two piles of hay in the field. Some of their friends were perched on other piles of hay and some were up in the trees.

"Are you coming to my dinner?" asked the first crow.

"When is it to be?" asked the second crow.

"This evening—as soon as I become hungry," said the first crow.

"I'll come with great pleasure," said the second crow, with a broad smile.

"Where is the dinner to be?" he asked after a moment.

"In yonder cornfield," said the first crow.

"Oh, how wonderful," said the second crow. "What magnificent banquet hall you engage for your guests."

"I try to do my best," said the first crow proudly.

"It's fun to see them work, isn't it?" asked the second crow. "I like to see the haying going on and all the summer farm work. I enjoy watching it."

"Not that I am lazy, oh, very far from it, but it is fun to see them work—the people—for they should work. I wouldn't mind if they were lazy for then the work wouldn't get done and we wouldn't get all the goodies from it."

"We like to see the people work, don't we?" the second crow ended.

"Ah, yes," said the first crow. "But do you know people have been improving of late—do you know that, or did you know that?"

"No, do tell me about it," said the second crow.

"You see," said the first crow, "people have been getting into saving of late. They've taken to saving for other people and for themselves, and they've been growing things to eat wherever they could, for they say it is very wicked to waste."

"They are planting and growing all the time. They began to do it several years ago, I believe, but it has been a thing of only a few years. It's a splendid idea, isn't it? More food all the time, and no wasting."

"Splendid idea," said the second crow.

"I thought you would agree with me," said the first crow.

"I most certainly do," said the second crow.

"Well, we'll have a good dinner tonight after our talk of food, won't we?"

"Indeed, we'll enjoy it."

Some children driving along by the field said,

"Oh, see those two crows, sitting side by side on those two hay stacks, what do you suppose they are thinking of?"

"Perhaps they're thinking of worms to eat," said the first child.

"Or perhaps they're thinking of their children," said the second child.

And little did the children know that the crows were thinking of their corn party, not that they were both so delighted that people were planting things and not wasting, which gave the crows a little extra food.

They felt too they deserved it for they did their work in destroying really harmful insects.

Idle Tears.

The youngest came crying to his mother.

"Why, dearie," she exclaimed.

"What is the matter?"

"Dad was lifting a big box and it fell on his toes," explained the child between sobs.

"But," continued mother, "that is hardly anything to cry about. You should have laughed at it."

"I did," said the boy.—Harpers Magazine.

Like a Basket of Apples.

Why is a volunteer movement like a basket of apples?

Answer—Because every corps (corps) has its volunteer (volunteer).

Success.

"What is the secret of success?" asked the Sphinx.

"Push," said the Sphinx.

"Never be led," said the Sphinx.

"Find a good thing and stick to it," said the Sphinx.

"Be the work you are wanted for," said the Sphinx.
